Further, I have on occasion fallen foul of the casual globe-trotters who have the effrontery to publish their impressions of a country through which they rush at lightning speed, gleanng their superficial knowledge at tables d hote and in railroad trains. I therefore undertook the setting-down of my impressions of America with great reluctance, and no sense of equipment for the task. This record, touched by the tenderness of real affection, and informed by gratitude which can never be fully acknowledged, will, I trust, be received by those who may read it in the spirit in which it is offered. A quiet observer, who during a period of seven months was afforded unique facilities for getting to know the American people, may have picked up some unconsidered trifles which at least may provoke reflection.
