Excerpt: . . . FPS had not been providing them consistently across all regions. FPS resumed the practice in October 2008, however, GSA security officials said that these briefings mostly focused on crime statistics and did not constitute comprehensive threat analyses. Additionally, FPS is only required to meet formally with GSA property managers and tenant agencies as part of the BSA process - an event that occurs every 2 to 5 years, depending on a buildings security level. We identified information sharing gaps at several level III and IV sites that we visited, and found that in some cases these deficiencies led to decreased security awareness and 28 increased risk. At one location, we observed during our interview with the BSC that the committee members were confused about procedures for screening visitors who are passengers in employees cars that enter the building via the parking garage. One of the tenants recounted an incident in which a security guard directed the visitor to walk through the garage to an appropriate screening station. According to the...
