Corinthians and Galatians (E.)Five Questions concerning Marriage. (a.) Should Corinthian Christians Marry? (7: 1, 2). 1, 2. Now concerning the things whereof ye wrote: It is good for a man not to touch a woman. But, because of fornications, let each man have his own wife, and let each woman have her own husband. Whereof ye wrote. Reference is made to an Epistle which the Corinthians had written Paul. In this Epistle, the questions that are here answered were propounded. The correspondence between Paul and the Corinthians in Armenian, and which Byron translated into English, is conceded to be spurious. (See Lightfoot.) It is seed. Here celibacy is designated as a good, whereas in the institution of marriage (Gen. 2: 18), God said, It is not good. How are the two to be reconciled? The passages in which marriage is professedly treated must be taken as the standard, according to which this reference to marriage in certain relations or under certain circumstances must be...
