These, while they captivate the attention of the crowd, do not furnish materials for abiding instruction, nor the best models for imitation. What it most concerns us to know is the home life, the daily labors, and the character of him who has devoted himself to the improvement of his fellow-men, as a teacher with his pen and tongue, and, if happily it may be also as an exemplar, in his own person, of the truth of the precepts which he inculcates. The lesson is made more instructive, if there be revealed to us the struggles which the subject of the biography had to make against the depressing influence of poverty or of disease. Successful progress in the high-road of general or of professional literature is, under such circumstances, true heroism, and entitles him to admiration and respect in a higher degree than are so readily conceded to the successful soldier, and to the daring adventurer into unknown regions.
