But we are able to draw certain inferences from the fact that the highest moral and religious conceptions of sonship ascribed to him find expression in utterances in which he either speaks of men in general (Mt. 594548), or includes himself with others (Mt.l?25 Mk.335). Whilst he may have avoided such a statement as I am a son of God, because bar Haha might have suggested an angel, a translated being like Elijah, or a king, it is possible, therefore, that the real reason was his fear lest he be misunderstood as claiming for himself alone that relation to the Father into which his own experience made him so desirous that all men should enter. How well founded such apprehensions would have been maybe seen from...
