Speculations concerning the perspirable Fluids of Human Bodies, with the View of ascertaining how they are sometimes converted to septic or pestilential Matter: In a Letter from Dr. Mitchill, to Andrew Duncan, M. D. 8Ca Professor of the Institutes of Medicine in the University of Edinburgh dated August 11, 1798. Sir, - IN reply to your last letter from Edinburgh, I have td remark, that of the fluids afforded by the human body, few have been more talked of, though, perhaps, none to less advantage, than those exhalations or effusiohs from its surface, denominated perspiration or sweat. The reason alleged wherefore so little has been experimentally done upon these fluids or humours, is, that they cannot be obtained in sufficient quantity; their volatility being such as to...
